

Who's Who in Khaki.

Arrived in camp last week Jim Tregurtha, the well known blacksmith and implement maker, late of Tregurtha and Hughes, Pingelly. Jim got out of the agricultural districts just in time to get into Edna May, and other Westonia ventures, whereby and wherefore Jim's banking account swelled to a good competence. Being Cornish in all his bones he felt the call and has answered it, and is now in the Pioneers Unit, where he will shine. Jim has set a good example to others we could name.

Wagin, Narrogin, Wickepin and Pingelly residents will be glad to hear that the popular ex W.A. Bank manager, Theo. S. Marshall, is in camp going to do his big bit for the cause. Theo was certainly the most popular bank manager along the G.S.R.; then went farming, to the loss of business to his bank and the loss of help to farmers.

surgical matters at his command. His series of lectures on diseases, their prevention and cure, were highly appreciated by the men in training, being terse and to the point, and should be published in pamphlet form.

In hospital in camp one Gustav Karna, a Russian Finn, who, despite the injustice done by the successive Tsars, is anxious to get off to fight the Huns. His opinion of Germans and Austrians is worth hearing, and his wishes are dire; in fact, if one hundredth part of his proposed torments happened to the Kaiser he will have a worse time than ever anyone expected. Rosso, as he is addressed, says they can keep all the vodka if they allow old Scotch to be sold.

Left the camp last week one of the most popular N.C.O.'s therein, the same being Sergt. Scottie Macdonald, of 22 Depot, one time Sergeant-Cook and well known in catering circles in
