

SEAMEN'S MISSION (NILE STREET) CONCERT.

The Missioner (Mr. J. C. Stanley) writes:—It is a few weeks since I have had the opportunity of telling you about the happenings at the above. It was a very bright concert on Thursday last, several of the old friends joining with the new ones that took part. Miss H. Neilsen, a local soprano, scored in her songs to the pleasure of the audience. Miss M. Morrison was heard to advantage in "Pal of My Dreams" and "I Lost the Best Pal that I Had." The same young lady, later in the programme, rendered a fine pianoforte selection. The Misses G. Eastwood and F. White were very versatile in their pianoforte numbers. The first-named young lady played the overture, while the others rendered two splendid humorous recitals. They also sang and danced together, receiving loud applause. Mrs. Denton's voice was in good form, as she sang some of the old soul-stirring songs, which were well received. Miss Alma Todd favored us with a bright song, which was well applauded. Mr. Craig regaled us with some of his rollicking songs, which took on. Mr. Harvey, one of our old friends from the Chronos, sang one of his old songs. The donkeyman of the same ship (Mr. Pavelkin) gave some selections on the mandolin; and our unfailing friend, Mr. B. Germein, played some favorite tunes. Mr. J. Lee gave a fine selection on the piano. To Mesdames O. Dunstan, B. Parkinson, Misses H. Neilsen, M. Morrison, and J. Lee we were indebted for their playing.
